

IP in Security Innovations Awards 2005

Do you feel your company has something worth shouting about? Maybe that latest network camera has some unique features or you believe that your software could be world-beating? On the other hand, that recently completed project may seem a bit special and worthy of some trumpet blowing?

Following the success of this years IP in Security Innovation Award and Gala Dinner the team behind the event have launched the forthcoming award programme which again takes place during IIPSEC week

IP in Security Awards - Delivering innovation deserves reward.

So don't just sit there, prove it by entering into the IP in Security Awards Programme. Five finalists and an overall winner will be judged from three key categories: Best IP Hardware, Best IP Software and Best IP Application. The winners from each category will go forward to be judged for the IP in Security Innovation Award – The big one!

Following the success of this years IP in Security Innovation Award and Gala Dinner the team behind the event have launched the forthcoming award programme which again takes place during IIPSEC week

You need to be in it to win it - 16 Awards up for grabs!

IIPSEC 2005 exhibitors are automatically eligible to enter as many as three categories which will be judged by a panel of eminent experts chosen from Security, Network and Telecoms industries.

Winners will be announced at the Gala Awards Dinner which takes place on the Wednesday 26th January during IIPSEC 2005 Show week (25th – 27th January 2004). The dinner is a celebration of fresh technology within the industry and includes vibrant presentations on the applications. The lucky winners will share the moment with over 200 world class manufacturers, leading installers and media companies.

5 Reasons to apply

- All finalists will be reviewed in leading security publications and the IIPSEC Show Guide.
- The awards will be publicised in both UK and European Business communities and promoted through Security, Networking and Communications publications. The Awards are supported by many of the leading industry publications and by IIPSEC 2004, the industry's premier showcase for IP security technology.
- You can use the award logo throughout your own corporate brochures and promotional material.
- Each category winner will receive a prestigious award

What are the Categories?

Five finalists will be selected from each of the three categories:

- IP Hardware – Any hardware product including Cameras, Access Control Readers, Interface, Recording Device, etc.
- IP Software – Any software based product for viewing, recording images, biometrics, image recognition, data management etc.
- IP Application – Any application which is unique in its use of IP to enhance overall performance

In addition, there will be an IIPSEC Overall Winner – the very best hardware, software or application chosen to be heads

Huge commercial benefits and entry is free!

Applications need not take longer than an hour or two and this investment of time may well prove hugely beneficial to your company. Finalists and winners will be reviewed and featured in the awards program in addition to post show web updates and newsletters. As part of our media partnership the awards will be publicised in both UK and European Business communities and promoted through over 20 media companies.

“ Winning two IP in Security Awards certainly put CNL into the spotlight and the recognition from such a respected and high profile group has significantly validated our position in the market....”

We are particularly pleased with the prestigious Innovation award and intend to fight hard to keep it...”

Keith Bloodworth
Managing Director CNL
